Student Satisfaction Survey - A Report

2019- 20

A survey was conducted by the St. Joseph's College of Education on students using Google forms about their experiences at the time of pandemic. The survey stated the way the college had taken up the classes during pandemic using Google meet, zoom and other forms of online classes. Students expressed their gratitude and thankfulness to the college administration for the way they handled the situation with courage and bravery. They felt very happy for the way the college had taken up the classes. They also felt happy for not letting the academic year get wasted without any classes. It helped all the students and faculty members to enhance and improve their technical skills during the pandemic. Though there were some short comings, they were overcome by adopting technical skills.

The survey was conducted on student teachers and M.Ed students as well. The following points were expressed by overall students as their experience.

- About 95% of the students expressed utmost satisfaction regarding the online classes.
- About 80% of the students expressed that they could cope up with the latest trends of learning through online.
- About 90% of the students expressed their greatest satisfaction for the way the teachers had taken up the classes online without any disturbance.
- About 82% of the students expressed their satisfaction to attend other seminars and webinars relevant to their subject which helped them improve their skills and knowledge in their field of education.

Each and every response is taken into consideration to improve the standards of learning through online. If time demands, the college is ready to handle classes online without and difficulty and disturbance.
